Ramada & Roamer $2,195 plus freight

Crank open a Ramada or a Roamer and you're on to something big—a living area that stretches for nearly 21 feet.

But it isn't just the space that's so impressive. It's the comfort inside the space.

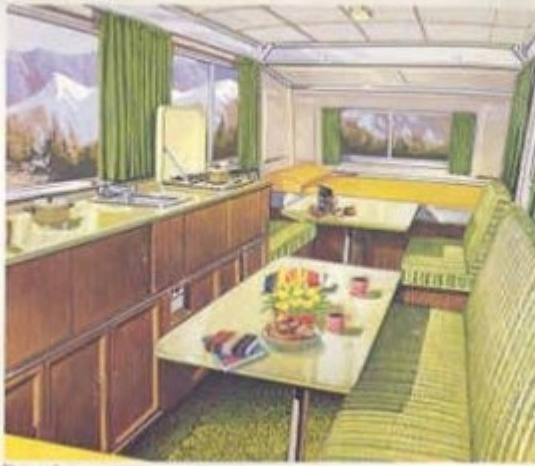

Ramada comes with two double beds, and a dinette that converts to another bed for two. Plus, a gauchó couch with companion table that becomes a fourth double bed. There's also a portable toilet enclosure.

Roamer, likewise, provides sleeping space for eight, but with a slightly different floor plan: a six-foot-wide gauchó couch with table up front and a large dinette at the rear, both of which convert to double beds.

Both models have fully equipped kitchens—stainless steel sink, water tank, 3-burner gas range and ice box—all conveniently housed in a waist-high galley cabinet with plenty of storage room inside.

Plug in the 110/12V electrical system and you enjoy twin ceiling lights and power ventilator. Or, luxury options like a stereo sound system, gas furnace and refrigerator.

Roamer or Ramada. The big, beautiful choice is yours.

Best of all, we're having a lot of fun, without spending a lot of money.

Mesa $1,795 plus freight

Let's face it.

One reason you buy a camping trailer is to save money when you travel. But buying a camper on price alone is no way to start saving. Not when you consider what your money buys in a Mesa. Solid walls, solid windows, solid roof. And a solid-comfort interior more than 16 feet long, with sleeping space for six.

You get two double beds, and a spacious dinette that turns into another bed for two. Plus, an all-convenience kitchen with a gas range, sink and ice box.

There's lots more.

Two roomy storage cabinets. 110/12V converter. Ceiling light. Power ventilator. Foam cushions and mattresses. Cushion vinyl floor covering. Wood-grain-finish aluminum cabinets. Sliding draperies. And, like all Apaches, Mesa is backed by a one-year warranty.

Add it all up, and you've got the solid value of the year.

Mesa Specifications: Length, 13' 5" • Width, 6' 7 1/2"
